

WITH THE V-CHIP, EVEN WHEN THEY HAVE THE REMOTE,
YOU CAN BE IN CONTROL.

As a parent, you want to have some control over what your children see on TV. But you can't always be there to make sure that what they are watching is appropriate. The good news is you have a tool to help you control what your children are viewing even when you're not around. And it's probably at your fingertips right now. The V-Chip.

The V-Chip is technology that's built into your TV set to "read" the rating for a particular TV program. Once you decide which TV ratings are inappropriate for your children, you can program your V-Chip with your remote control to block out programs with these ratings.

Learn more about how to use your V-Chip at www.fcc.gov/parents/

FOX

RCA

At Fox and RCA, we are committed to giving parents the tools to decide.